Proper Badge Usage

The security identification badge is issued to support job duties and responsibilities at the Airport and should be used for official business purposes only. You should never use your security identification badge for personal or off-duty use.

Airport employees are required to use and display their identification badge which identifies the company they're currently working for.

An employee with more than one employer and has been issued multiple badges cannot work for a company using a badge issued under a different company.

Companies and/or employees violating this directive will result in the loss of access privileges, fines and/or prosecution.

Remember, Security is Everybody's Business!

The Department of Aviation Security division is responsible for managing an effective airport security program that ensures a safe and secure environment at the world's busiest airport while exceeding customers' expectations and complying with applicable regulations, laws and codes.

If you have any questions, please contact the Security division via email at SecurityID@atl.com. We thank you in advance for your continued support of the Airport Security Program.
