Coming Soon: Identity Management System (IDMS)

As part of our ongoing commitment to improving security, efficiency, and customer service, the Credentialing Office is preparing for the future implementation of the Identity Management System (IDMS). Although the system is still in the planning and implementation phase, our goal is to ensure a smooth transition when it is introduced on Nov. 2, 2026.

What This Means for You

IDMS will provide a more streamlined and user-friendly credentialing experience by simplifying many of the processes employees and authorized signatories use throughout the badge lifecycle. Whether you are applying for a new badge, renewing or updating an existing credential, requesting a replacement, IDMS is designed to make these processes easier and more efficient.

A Faster, More Efficient Credentialing Process

IDMS will help reduce processing times by automating many routine tasks that are currently completed manually. This means fewer delays, improved accuracy, and a more consistent experience.

Improved Security and Compliance

The system will strengthen identity verification while helping ensure all credentialing requirements, background checks, training, and security regulations are met before badges are issued. These improvements support a safer and more secure airport environment for everyone.

A Modernized Customer Experience

By bringing credential information into one centralized system, IDMS will improve communication, reduce duplicate data entry, and enable Credentialing staff to better serve its customers daily.
